Answer to 37. If General Johnston had not been removed in front of Atlanta Sherman would never have marched to the sea, and with Wheeler one flank, Forrest on other and Johnston in his rear, they would have destroyed his army. (On my being detailed in Humphreys Co. as above stated, I was the only man sent east of Tenn. River and the yankees heard of me and said they were going to capture me but they had as well tried to capture a red fox.
